One of the most memorable family trips I have been on was to Barcelona, Spain. Visiting churches is something I have found to be extremely blissful and peaceful ever since I was a kid. I remember how excited I was on the day we were visiting the Sagrada Familia. We walked in the streets up to the church which was beautiful and lively. We got inside and it was one of the most powerful places I had ever been to. It was unlike any other church I had been to and I sat there filled with a sense of awe and gratitude.

As for my meaningful childhood object, Lego was something I grew up playing with and to date enjoying building. It's a hobby my brother and I bonded over as kids and loved to put these blocks together to make all sorts of things from vehicles, castles, sitcom characters to Hogwarts, Marvel, and Star Wars spaceships.
